MONTGOMERY—State Treasurer Kay Ivey was recently elected president for the southern region of the National Association of State Treasurers (NAST) at the national convention in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Ivey, serving in the first year of her term as State Treasurer, is proud to be recognized by her peers for this position.

“I am honored by the confidence the southern treasurers have placed in me to represent them on the NAST executive committee,” stated Ivey. “NAST is a great source of information-sharing, and I hope my service on the executive committee will help keep the Alabama State Treasury on the leading edge of innovations in the financial industry.”

At the national convention, Alabama was also selected to host the 2005 Southern State Treasurers Conference in conjunction with the National Association of Unclaimed Property Administrators (NAUPA) Conference. The event will take place in Point Clear, Alabama.

Ivey stated, “I am eager to show off Alabama’s world-renown hospitality and beautiful gulf coast to the southern treasurers.”

NAST membership is made up of all state treasurers from the United States, its territories, and the District of Columbia. The treasurers of the United States collectively manage over $7 trillion in assets.
